

Explore queer youth-driven participatory media projects that produce (and are produced by) remixed stories and bodies.

Consider the possibilities of coalitional gestures at work in these corporeal and narrative remixings and how such gestures might intervene in rhetorical appeals to "exceptional" youth with:

Dr. Adela C. Licona

University of Arizona

at her talk:

Stories and Bodies-So-Far: Queer/ed Relational Re/Mixings as Coalitional Gestures

Tuesday, October 1st at 4:30pm

in the Troy Moore Library

Rm 939 of Langdale Hall (Formerly known as the General Classroom Building)

Open to the Public

Presented by the Institute for Women's Gender, and Sexuality Studies and co-sponsored by the Department of Communication, Faces of Feminism, and SPEAK