Online Community Building: Beyond Clicks and Likes

Public Presentation with J. Sarah Gonzales
September 10, 2013 @ 12:30 pm
Tubac Room in the Student Union Memorial Center University of Arizona

J. Sarah Gonzales, founder of social justice education and consulting business TruthSarita, LLC, will share her experience with online collaboration and art as community activism.

Come join us and learn more about facilitating online collaboration, working with diverse communities, and using art for social justice.

To learn more about community education and multimodal community / academic collaborations, visit Sarah @ http://www.truthsarita.com and Londie @ http://www.londietmartin.com

For more information about this event, contact: londiem@email.arizona.edu

This event is organized by UA undergraduate students in the eSociety Program's Collaboration in Online Communities course, ESOC 211, together with UA Professor Londie Martin and Community Educator, J. Sarah Gonzales.

eSociety, a new program in the School of Information Resources & Library Science, offers students the opportunity to pursue a Bachelor of Arts degree or undergraduate minor focused on the ways we create, process, share, manage, and shape knowledge in a digitally networked society.

For more on the eSociety program, visit http://sirls.arizona.edu/undergraduate/esociety

"Youth voice as ARTivism is one of our communities' most dynamic forms of leadership."

J. Sarah Gonzales